November 15, 2011

The Honorable Lisa Jackson
Administrator
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
1200 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20460

Dear Administrator Jackson:

We are writing to express our concerns over asthmatics' access to over-the-counter inhalers. Due to Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) enforcement, on December 31, 2011, consumers will no longer have access to an over-the-counter asthma inhaler used for the relief of bronchial asthma symptoms, such as wheezing, tightness of chest, and shortness of breath. Although prescription inhalers will be available to patients, many individuals rely on over-the-counter inhalers to address acute asthma attacks because of convenience and, more importantly, because of the cost to the consumer.

Primatene Mist is the only over-the-counter inhaler available for individuals who suffer from asthma. We are primarily concerned that the decision to continue with plans to take chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) based over-the-counter inhalers off the market when there is no non-CFC based over-the-counter alternative available could harm patients by severely restricting access to essential medication. Approximately three million people currently rely on this inhaler, which has been available to them in most pharmacies for approximately $20.00. If the ban on the sale of Primatene Mist does go into effect, patient-consumers will be required to pay for doctor visits just to obtain a prescription, and then spend up to three times more than they otherwise would to actually obtain their asthma medication.

We understand that companies are currently developing a non-CFC based over-the-counter inhaler. However, it is unlikely that such an inhaler will be approved by December 31, 2011. To minimize disruption for those that rely on over-the-counter inhalers, we urge you to act promptly to ensure that available inventories of Primatene Mist can continue to be distributed and sold without threat of any enforcement action by the EPA. We request that EPA take all appropriate actions within the agency's authority, including providing assurances that the agency will refrain from any enforcement actions, in order to allow for the continued distribution and sale in the U.S. of those available inventories after December 31, 2011, and until such time as a non-CFC based substitute over-the-counter inhaler becomes available.

While we understand these actions will not completely address the access issue surrounding the removal of the CFC based over-the-counter inhalers, it could mitigate disruption until a new non-CFC based over-the-counter inhaler is approved. We appreciate your response as soon as possible, and request that you advise us not later than one week after the date of this letter of the actions EPA plans to undertake to address this issue. Should you have any questions, please contact Mary Neumayr of the Committee Staff at (202) 225-2927.
